The Absolute Power falls in line with what Storm is known for best: backend reaction. R2S DEEP fits this persona to the letter. R2S DEEP is cleaner through the front compared to the flagship R2S formula. Its reaction sensitivity is delayed which helps it to ignore the first 1/3 of the lane. This yields more backend shape and deeper finishes in the pocket. Compared to the Absolute™, the Absolute Power will benefit bowlers who favor more midlane and thanks to this rougher and more porous R2S DEEP Solid option. In most cases, an extra slug, or weighted disk, is needed to create enhanced dynamics, but the evenly weighted masses at both ends of the Sentinel Core upgrades this effect more than a single slug ever could. This ensures the Absolute Power will change direction and continue through the pins better and more consistently. This is the first single-density asymmetric core in the Storm line since the Lucid™.
